

[Read free ebook] Inside Interviewing: New Lenses, New Concerns

Inside Interviewing: New Lenses, New Concerns

James A. Holstein, Jaber F. Gubrium
ePub | *DOC | audiobook | ebooks | Download PDF

Download

Read Online

#1588727 in Books SAGE Publications, Inc 2003-03-21Ingredients: Example IngredientsOriginal language:EnglishPDF # 1 10.00 x 1.16 x 7.011, 2.08 #File Name: 0761928510568 pages | File size: 55.Mb

James A. Holstein, Jaber F. Gubrium : Inside Interviewing: New Lenses, New Concerns before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Inside Interviewing: New Lenses, New Concerns:

0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Excellent bookBy Mary DeasonMy advisor suggested this book to increase quality of data collected in interviews.

Interview books typically stress the need for establishing rapport with respondents and asking questions that dont influence the responses. Until now, no text has seriously explored who the subjects are behind interview participants.

Inside Interviewing showcases the fluctuating and diverse moral worlds put into place during interview research when gender, race, culture, age, and other subject positions are brought narratively to the foreground. It explores the communicative contexts of respondents thoughts, feelings, and actions, and how meaning is not merely elicited by apt questioning nor transported through clear respondent replies, but actively and socially assembled in the interview encounter, along with changing understandings of what it means to be a particular subject.

""The editors' introduction is excellent, providing a brief history of interviewing as a research technique and highlighting many of the issues that concern today's research interviewers...Inside Interviewing would be valuable for doctoral-level research methods classes, as well as for practicing researchers. It is an excellent starting point for examining specific issues, such as reflexivity."" -- Heidi Juilien "Library and Information Science Research, An International Journal""The editors' introduction is excellent, providing a brief history of interviewing as a research technique and highlighting many of the issues that concern today's research interviewers...Inside Interviewing would be valuable for doctoral-level research methods classes, as well as for practicing researchers. It is an excellent starting point for examining specific issues, such as reflexivity."--Heidi Juilien "Library and Information Science Research, An International Journal " "The editors introduction is excellent, providing a brief history of interiewing as a research technique and highlighting many of the issues that concern todays research interviewers...Inside Interviewing would be valuable for doctoral-level research methods classes, as well as for practicing researchers. It is an excellent starting point for examining specific issues, such as reflexivity." (Heidi Juilien Library and Information Science Research, An International Journal)About the AuthorJames A. Holstein is professor of sociology in the Department of Social and Cultural Sciences at Marquette University. His research and writing projects have addressed social problems, deviance and social control, mental health and illness, family, and the self, all approached from an ethnomethodologically-informed, constructionist perspective.Jaber F. Gubrium is professor and chair of sociology at the University of Missouri. He has an extensive record of research on the social organization of care in human service institutions. His publications include numerous books and articles on aging, family, the life course, medicalization, and representational practice in therapeutic context.