starting this book, because the author throws up excerpts of sheet music to explain his beginning concepts. So don't waste your money if you have no music training at all. Very disappointing. 8 of 8 people found the following review helpful. Inside Music, by Karl Haas By Olga Drucker I was a loyal fan of Karl Haas and listened to his radio programs on NPR for many years. When I was preparing for a series of lectures myself, about music appreciation, I used this wonderful book as a guide. It is perfect for beginners who know little or nothing about the art of music, but only what they "like" or "don't like." Once you have started digging a little deeper and know what to listen for, your whole world changes for the better. And Karl helped me -- and countless others -- to do just that. He passed away a few years ago, and is truly missed. His music, and his writing, live on. 2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. Excellent reference work in eloquent Haas style, brings back golden memories By Jonathan L. Clemens Brings back memories of my boyhood (about 8 or so) when Haas' wonderful program first introduced me to the endless treasures of classical music. Excellent resource for basic music history and theory, musical instruments, etc.

Karl Haas, creator and host of the internationally syndicated radio program "Adventures in Good Music," has an inimitable flair for bringing classical music to life. This is a definitive and fascinating reference work for anyone who loves classical music and wants to learn more about its many aspects and dimensions.

About the Author Karl Haas was born in Germany in 1913. Before fleeing to America in 1936 due to the rise of Nazism, he studied piano with Artur Schnabel and received a doctorate in music literature from Heidelberg University. Haas was best known for his radio program, Adventures in Good Music, which became the world's most popular classical music radio program. He was awarded the Charles Frankel Prize from the National Endowment for the Humanities in 1991. In 1997, he became the first classical music broadcaster to be inducted into the National Radio Hall of Fame. Haas passed away in 2005.
