1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Organizing the Job Search for Rehabilitation Counselors and their CllientsBy Nikki LeighThis workbook is a great tool for any rehabilitation counselors and job placement professionals who are working with clients to help them search for and find the best job for them. The content walks the client through each step of figuring out their strengths, education, skills, and background to determine the type of jobs they should pursue. There is a sample resume and application to show how each should be completed. One of my favorite parts is about networking - so many people need to understand what it is and how to do it... well. Learn about the different types of job markets - typical, state and private. Then there are also pages where the client can track what jobs they will apply for, where they applied and much more. This is a great tool for the counselors and their clients to find jobs.

The Job Search Organizer offers a managed approach to job placement, providing a format for counselor-client interaction, skill identification, and job-search strategies designed to gain a high level of client participation during a job search and achieve positive results in job placement. The Organizer takes counselors and their clients step-by-step through a skill identification process and a comprehensive job search, including an original design for networking in the hidden job market where 40% to 75% of the jobs in a community, and most of the better jobs, can be found. The Organizer helps manage the everyday job search, providing space for making assignments, taking notes, and keeping track of information and important employer contacts. Counselors and their client will find this Organizer easy to follow with information and helpful hints from experts in the job-search field.
