

[Free read ebook] Learn Hangul in One Hour: A Complete Course on How to Teach Yourself the Korean Writing System

Learn Hangul in One Hour: A Complete Course on How to Teach Yourself the Korean Writing System

Allen D. Williams

*ebooks | Download PDF | ePub | DOC | audiobook

#45439 in Books CreateSpace Independent Publishing Platform 2012-03-18Original language:EnglishPDF #1 9.00 x .18 x 6.00l, .26 #File Name: 147009529776 pages | File size: 73.Mb

Allen D. Williams : Learn Hangul in One Hour: A Complete Course on How to Teach Yourself the Korean Writing System before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Learn Hangul in One Hour: A Complete Course on How to Teach Yourself the Korean Writing System:

34 of 34 people found the following review helpful. Super useful, not to be used on it's own thoughBy Lexus

Demetres This book was very useful in finding ways to remember Korean letters. I bought this book along with another that was a "Korean for beginners", using them both together helped even more. This book helps you identify the letter, the other one helped me in pronunciation. Also, if you're looking to be learning similar to how I am (on your own, not in a classroom setting and not in Korea) I'd recommend getting a buddy who is Korean who can help you along the way. Also, this book was very fun and had some comical quirks in it. It definitely made learning the language enjoyable! All-in-all, this is a highly recommended book! 13 of 13 people found the following review helpful. Helpful and fun
By Lovelybooks I liked this book. I found the memory devices very helpful for remembering the shape of characters. I also liked that it demonstrated how to properly write the character. Yes, I did learn it in an hour. I had to look elsewhere for the special rules of letter placement and pronunciation, but overall I enjoyed going through this book and seeing how quickly I picked up a foreign writing system. 23 of 24 people found the following review helpful. Easy~
By Amanda O'Bara I am just starting to learn Korean but this helped me learn the alphabet quickly. It's very helpful when you're just starting out but I still couldn't write anything long until I did a little more research from other books. It's a really easy read though that makes things simple so it was worth buying.

Learn to read, write, and remember the Korean writing system, Hangul, in one hour.

From the Author A journey of a thousand miles begins with a single step. Now, wouldn't that journey be a lot easier if that first step was to reach for the phone and call a travel agent to book a reservation on the next flight to that destination? Sure it would. This is the 21st Century and your time is valuable. You don't have to take that journey on foot, and you don't have to travel alone. This book is a lot like that. Buying this book is the first step of that journey to learn Hangul, and it can be easier and a lot more fun than you ever imagined. In fact, it may appear to even be too easy. That would be great, wouldn't it? Korean children spend weeks learning Hangul in elementary school, others who want to learn Korean language must first spend days and even weeks doing the same thing before they can even start. Don't waste your time and effort. There's no reason for you to learn Hangul that way. With this book you can learn in about one hour what others have taken hours, days, even weeks to learn. Impress your friends and get a jump on your Korean language study with this method.
From the Inside Flap This book is intended to teach you to learn and remember the Korean writing alphabet. This alphabet is called Hangul, and has been heralded by some to be one of the most scientific writing systems in use today. However, since it varies greatly from the English alphabet, it can appear daunting at first and traditional methods for learning and remembering it are boring and time consuming. If you follow the steps set forth in this book, you will accomplish this task, and you will do it in only 1 hour. 1 hour of concentrated study on the ideas set forth in this book. I am not a Korean language teacher in the formal sense, but I have spent a good deal of time studying the Korean language as well as a smattering of time on a couple of other languages. I wrote this book in response to the frustrations I've seen from those who were struggling to learn Korean but were doing it by following romanized versions of the words. I hate to see time and talent wasted, and to me, that is just what that kind of study is, a waste. If you're in Korea, you will see very little romanization (or other English spelling representations). Outside of road signs and a few restaurant menus, Hangul is the prevalent method for writing Korean, and it is well worth the time it takes to learn and remember it. Also, once you have mastered the alphabet, you will be surprised at how many things you are able to understand, especially since there are a great deal of foreign words in use in Korea but represented in Hangul and with a slightly different pronunciation. If you truly want to learn Korean, then learning Hangul is the first and most sensible step. This book will teach you to do this, learning on your own or in a group. Chinese characters are also used to represent the Korean language, but it is becoming less and less used though it still appears in newspaper headlines and many Koreans' name or business cards. This book won't be dealing with those characters. You will also need to continue your usage of your new found knowledge in order to permanently ingrain it into your memory and apply this knowledge to acquiring vocabulary. I am sure you will find this book helpful in starting you on the path to a wonderful experience with your study of Korean or stay in Korea.
About the Author Allen Williams grew up in southern Illinois then spent several years roaming around the western half of the U.S. After moving to Western Kentucky to finish college and later earning his M.A., he spent 6 years, living, working, and studying in South Korea. He earned a Ph.D in literature from Keimyung University in Daegu, South Korea. He has a 1st Degree black belt in Taekwondo, certified by the Kookiwon in Seoul. He is currently living, working, and writing in Nagoya, Japan with his wife and two sons. they share their time between Korea and Japan.